Historical Background and Evolution

The template’s origins can be traced to the early 2000s, when internet forums and early social media platforms like LiveJournal and MySpace were breeding grounds for meme culture. The distorted portrait style became popular as a way to mock or exaggerate faces, often paired with ironic captions. The specific "paint me like one of your French girls" variation likely emerged as a joke about the song's irony—Morissette's lyrics are often seen as sarcastic, and the template's surreal visuals amplify that effect.
